In a notebook found in the stocking on the right leg of the woman was written, "Nella Hall, 46 Cairo, Ill., 1614 Olive street." A Post-Dispatch reporter learned from Mrs. Lissie Vorpohl, who keeps a boarding house at 1614 Olive street, that a couple known as the "Dancing Halls" had lived at her place until last Saturday, when they left for Madison.

There was no jewelry on the body, except a cheap breastpin. A pocketbook, containing no money, was found at her feet. The point where the body was found was a short distance from the North and South road. Kurrelmeyer's theory was that the woman was killed elsewhere, and her body carried into the field. The state of the body indicated the woman had been dead several days. Mail Advices to Associated Press Confirm Rumors of Disaster, Which Occurred the Morning of Oct. 27-Captain Left the Ship in Evening and Explosion Then Sent Her to Bottom.

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—Rumors of disaster to the British suer-dreadnought Audacious, which have persisted ever since the White Star Olympic, diverted from her course, arrived at Lough Swilly on Oct. 29, are confirmed in mail advices received today by the Associated Press from a point in Ireland.

After a career of less than two years, the Audacious, of the King George V class-third in tonnage and armament of His Majesty's warships—lies at the bottom of the ocean off the north coast of Ireland. She was hit by a torepdo or disabled by a mine just before 9 o'clock on the morning of Oct. 27. With the possible exception of one or two men, the whole crew of 800 officers and men was rescued by small boats from the Olympic.

The rescue was made in a rough sea through brilliant and daring seamanship on the part of the White Star crew.

The battleship's cry for assistance was caught by the wireless operator of the Olympic, which was only about 10 miles distant. The steamer rushed forward at full speed, while her crew made ready for their work. Volunteers were called for and double the number necessary to man the lifeboats responded. The crippled battleship was reached a few minutes after 9 o'clock, and before noon-all but 100 of her men had been transferred.

Two of Engines Unharmed; One Out of Commis

By that time the battleship had a decided list at the stern, where just below the waterline she had received her wound. Two of her engines were unharmed,

After taking off all the officers and crew, who would leave the ship, Capt. ship. A cable was given her, but it snapped as it tightened. Meantime the bulkheads began to give way and it was soon apparent that it would be impossible to tow the ship or keep her afloat. The cruiser Liverpool and several other warships which had come up stood by. Late in the afternoon it was decided to abandon the Audacious and the officers and men who had rehained aboard reluctantly left her.

The flotills of rescue ships continued to stand by, however, until 3 o'clock that evening, when a terrific explosion occurred on board and the Audacious plunged stern first and in a moment had disappeared.

The explosion is supposed to have been caused by shells set loose by the listing of the battleship. A bit of armor plate torn from the sinking ship struck the deck of the Liverpool, cutting the legs from under a gunner. The man died in a short time. short time.

The Audacious met her fate 25 miles off the Irish coast, which frighten her. At that she shot him with her revolver. The automatic with its magazine completely charged was found by his side; also the woman's revolver. The only living witness to the tragedy was Miss Burgemeister and a charge of murder has been made against her. A similar charge has been made against Mrs. Emma Daschiel of St. Louis, formerly a nurse in the Koehler home, who was visiting Miss Burgemeister.

The Audacious met her fate 25 miles off the Irish coast, which the Olympic was skirting. The liner sailed from New York for Glasgow on Oct. 21. She had been warned that there were German mines off Tory Island, and fear of these mines was the official explanation when she unexpectedly put into Lough Swilly. The Olympic's passengers saw the flash of the explosion and watched the mighty warrior sink. Then their ship turned her prow to-ward Lough Swilly. Small craft cleared the route to make sure it was free fines. From Oct. 27 to Nov. 2, the Olympic lay at Lough Swilly, durmediate investigation of the loss of the battleship was begun. Charles M. Schwab was the only passenger who left the Oyimpic before it docked at Bel-Burgemeister.

Byrgemeister.

It is not generally believed that a conviction in either case is possible whatever the facts may be and it is understood that friends of Koehler will not endeavor to push the prosecution. The funeral of Koehler will be held tomorrow. The two women now under arrest are held without bond.

Britain's Navy Heavier Loser Than Germany's in Both Tonnage and Men

LTHOUGH it is almost impossible to ascertain the exact number of losses, both in ships and men, which have been suffered by the German and British navies since the outbreak of the present war, the figures which have been obtained from various Admiralty statements and newspaper sources show that the Britons are the heaviest losers. The Germans, it is true, have lost more vessels than the enemy, but the total tonnage is against the English. Whereas 22 German warships have been destroyed, and their displacement is 93,167 tons, only 19 British ships have been lost, but with a displacement of 140,700.

It may be said, however, that four English ships have been lost through shipwreck, rather than by attack from the enemy, while all of the German warships, with the exception of the cruiser Yorck. which was sunk by a German mine, have been destroyed at the hands of the allies.

Bells Tied to Wire Barriers by Germans to Prevent Surprises

PARIS, Nov. 14. TALES of brilliant fighting are related by officers who have returned here from the front. One of these officers said that a brigade of French bluejackets on the Belgian frontier Thursday night played a trick on the entrenched Germans who had hung cans and bells on their wire entanglements in order to prevent a night surprise attack. attack.

The sailors, according to this officer, crept out and tied strings to the wires and then returned to their own trenches. They continually pulled these strings, which caused the Germans to keep up for many hours a constant though ineffectual fire. When finally the Germans ceased firing the sailors attacked and took a number of prisoners.

BIG MUDDY RIVER DRAGGED FOR BOD' OF M'DANIEL CHILD

Illinois Authorities Confident Woman Weighted in Water Was Missing Mother.

PARENT TO SEE BODY

Member of Holy Roller Sect Who Disappeared at Time She Disappeared Sought.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post

CARBONDALE, Ill., Nov. 14.-All day yesterday men drifted in boats on the stagnant, leaf-strewn Big Muddy and dragged the bottom for the body of Norman Lester McDaniel, 2-year-old son of Mrs. Ethel Reeves McDaniel which it was thought might have been cast into the stream from the iro bridge, 50 feet high and 300 feet long, which spans the river and the tim-bered lowland along its northerneshore woman whose body was thrown from the bridge weighted with a stone weighing 66 pounds has not been posi-tively identified, but from description and circumstances it has been con cluded that she was Mrs. McDaniel, 20-Murphysboro and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Reeves, who live on a hilltop farm where Hickory Ridge and Poplar Ridge meet, seven miles south

Whether the mother, who arrived in Carbondale today, is able to make a pos-itive identification after the body has been disinterred for the purpose. the opinion that the victim is Mrs. Mc-Daniel is so well established in the inds of the people hereabouts that Mrs. McDaniel in the flesh would conce them to the contrary.

Took Boy With Her.
Chief interest centers now, therefore, in the fate of the boy Mrs. McDaniel took him with her when she slipped away in the night, Oct 31, from the home of R. G. Lindsey, in the Poplar Ridge neighborhood, where she had been staying. Neither mother nor child was seen alive afterward by anyone can be found. The woman was was that her husband, who separated from her last January, might return from Nebraska and take him from her.

Those who know Mrs. McDaniel best believe that she kept the boy with her until her death. The persons resp sible for her death, in a desperate fort to conceal the crime, hurled the weighted body into the river. Possession of the child would have been not only inconvenient, but a damaging cir-cumstance, and it is feared that the little boy was killed and his body cast into the stream at the same time and Information which reached Coroner Travelstead last night indicates that the body or bodies may have been thrown the bridge between midnight and 1 McDaniel disappeared. A young man and a young woman, the Coroner was informed, were driving across the bridge in an automobile after midnight that night, and as they neared the southern end the headlights revealed for an instant a bundled object beside the southern end the headlights revealed for an instant a bundled object beside the road. nother had them and so did one of his prothers. I will stick by him and help him in every way I can, though I have Lost His Own Money.

In his effort to rob the Gravols Bank Finch made and lost a small fortune in few minutes. He left the bank poorer than when he went in, as $2.45 of his own money was taken from him along with $1600 of the bank's money, after Constable Bobring had "made him ear his gun.' Finch entered the bank at 3:30 n. m when the only persons there were the cashler, J. Harry Rehme of 4127 Nebraska avenue; the bookkeeper, Oscar Crecelius of Sappington, and the janitor. Mrs. Belle Nally of 4600 Seibert avenue. Walking up to the counter he leveled a revolver at Rehme's head and com manded him to throw up his hands. He gave the same command to Crecelius, who was at a desk near Rehme's cage. Both obeyed the order.

Just then Mrs. Nally, who had been cleaning one of the inner offices, stepped into the main banking room. She also was forced to hold up her hands.

Pulled Down Shades.
Finch then ordered the woman and the two men to enter Rehme's cage. He ered while he took the bank's revolve from Rehme's desk and put it in his coat pocket. At the robber's order Cre celius pulled down all the window shades.

The only remaining possible view of the banking room from the outside was through the door, set at an angle at the corner of the building. He made Cre-cellus lock this door.

Finch next commanded his three captives to get into the vault. As they were complying he noticed that the ombination was not set so that the or could be locked from the outside. He forced Rehme to set the combination When the three were in the vault he bushed the heavy steel door shut, but did not lock it. The prisoners could hear the robber moving about the bank. Customs Collected at Port May Not Be Paid Over Until One Faction Gains Control.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.-American rule in Vera Cruz, which was estab-lished April 21, after sharp fighting and the loss of 19 marines and blue-jackets, will be ended Nov. 23. Secretary Garrison today worked out plans for withdrawal of the troops after the President and Secretary Bryan de-termined on the date for the evacuation. Secretary Bryan announced that all the Mexican factions had given assurance and guarantees requested for the Vera Cruz citizens who worked for the American Government and that safety the United States had made itself responsible, had left the city.

The announcement apparently cam as it generally had been understoo that the evacuation would not be ordered until it was determined which of the contending Mexican factions could control Vera Crus and assure execution of the guarantees

Plans for the evacuation practically were completed some time ago when radier-General Funston announced the garrison of more than 8000 troops and marines could embark on the five waiting transports within 48 hours. Orders for the return of the warships in Mexican waters would not be issued, Secretary Daniels announced, the army had departed from Vera Cruz. Some of the warships will be maintained on both coasts, however, to protect the interests of Americans and foreigners.

Notwithstanding the announcement the belief still prevails that the Mexi-cans are to be brought face to face with the realization that the present opportunity afforded them to adjust their differences is final and that if they fail the United States will take decisive steps to compel the restora-tion of order and tolerable living.

It was as if Ropartz had set before himself the desperate resolve to write a symphony in which not a single accent should resemble any other ever written, and had carried out his purpose by the sweat of his brow. Yet his toll was informed with such unerring taste and such masterly intelligence that the result is more than a "tour de force"t is a genuine masterplece of musical

"DAD"-A MANFUL NOVEL.

HE story of "Dad," a new novel by Albert Payson Terhune, opens on the preliminary scene of a brilliant celebration, by Gen. Winfield Scott of the final and complete triumph of the United States in the Mexican War The celebration was to take place in a Mexican city. The conquerors and the conquered, indeed, already were as arly interpretation of Director Max sembled for the occasion. But it did not take place. The reason why it not take place. The reason why it didn't, according to Novelist Terhune's rattling good story, was because a cer-tain Lieutenant-Colonel James Brinton of Gen. Zachary Taylor's personal staff a gallant and hard-fighting soldier, arrived as Taylor's representative, crazy drunk on Mexican pulque, of the treach erous strength of which he was unti ow ignorant, and insisted upon making few remarks to the assembled crowds.

These few remarks were directly and ntentionally insulting to Gen. Scottold "Fuss and Feathers"-and informe the assemblage that all the glory for the victory of American arms in Mexico rightfuly belonged to Gen. Taylor, but had been stolen from that old war horse by "Fuss and Feathers" Scott. Prompt ly thereafter the epaulets of Lieuten nt-Colonel Brinton were torn from h shoulders by Gen. Scott and he was disonorably dismissed from the military ervice of the United States.

When the Civil War began, this same James Brinton was 55 years old, a frunkard because of the shame that had come to him at the close of the Mexican War, and with but one passion left in life—his devoted love for his young grandson, Jimmie. The old soldier is wild to enlist in the Union army. ly, prompted thereto by his worshiping grandson, he does enlist as a private under the name of James Dadd-shaped at a moment's notice from the affectionate title, "Dad," given him by Grandson Jimmie.

And then begins a splendid rush heroic deeds in war, linked also to umph over the Confederacy. While he's own grandson, who has enlisted as a rummer and come to be known as 'Battling Jimmie," because of the redheaded pluck that made his drum-beat on the firing line an irresistible inspiraion for Federal victory.

The adventures that these two share throughout the Civil War have a royal good grip on manful endeavor. Straight up the line of promotion climbs James Dadd, otherwise James Brinton, until finally President Lincoln himself learns the secret of his identity, wipes out the one black mark on his soldierly record and commissions him a brevet Briga-dier-General under his rightful name. During these same stirring days, too, prave old "Dad" has met and loved and been loved by a sound-hearted woman, of his own generation, the widow of a War soldier, and a beautiful ray-haired romance culminates with the chiming of wedding bells in the air. It's a novel with a new stroke, cheer fully telling of the sure redemption of n unconquerable man and making you love the man as if you had known him n the flesh. And its war-time at mosphere is grippingly vivid. You won't put the book down, once you have be gun its reading. (W. J. Watt & Co., New York.)

three years' digression as a part of the rise, and, such is her skill, she has preserved to Jennie Cushing a sympathy that is not unwholesome.

The point of view of Jennie Cushing was not at all that of one properly taught. To her thinking, it was not right for her to marry a wealthy artist who wanted to marry her, because it would complicate his family and social elationships, but it was not wrong, she reasoned, to "belong" to him for a while. So she "belonged," and is shown by the author as being thrown into a nomentary panic of rebellion at the thought, by and by, that he might, out of kindness, try to insist on marrying her. It is suggested that if she had been the praying sort she would have prayed to be preserved from that "hu

Parkway Will Benefit All.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I am heartlly in favor of the central parkway and have been greatly surprised to read of the op-position to the plan and the tactics employed by the opposition at the hearing of the House of Delegates. Isn't it possible that the opponents of this bill, who behaved so shamefully, failed to realize that there are to be parks that the people of St enjoy the trees and the grass and a quiet rest? Is it not possible that the opponents at the hearing the other night were under the impression that of the complaining witness herself and circumstance public would be excluded from the park back of its library, which is beautiful to look at, but nains no provision whatever for people to sit was and enjoy the beauties of the place? If the int could be brought out that all people will be let o anjoy the new central parkwey and not excluded from it as they are from City Hall with and other downtown parks. I believe the position might disappear.

PLAYGROUNDS OR CRIMINALS?

"A Mother of Six Children" protests to New York newspaper that its outcry against permitting children to play in the streets is unjust. She writes:

What should the poor children do to get a bit of fresh air and exercise? They are being driven from their narrow homes into the streets; the janitors drive them off the porches and sidewalks; the highway authorities drive them off the streets—their only playground. Give the children proper play spaces and there will be fewer criminals.

The formation of gangs is caused by lack of playgrounds for legitimate and clean play. Give the poor children a few rights and they will not abuse them.

SUPREME COURT ACTED WISELY.

The Post-Dispatch printed last Monday letter from John F. Green, setting forth facts in the People vs. Mullane case from Iron County. The release of the defendant in this case charged with an assault on a woman who was accompanying her hobo husband on a tramp through Missouri, was recently made the subject of severe criticism by the Post-Dispatch and other newspapers.

The difficulty of determining the merits of Fouls can use in this central parkway; that there the class of cases to which this one belongs will be benches where the citizens can sit down and is notorious among lawyers. The defendant the class of cases to which this one belongs was guilty of culpable conduct, but admissions of the complaining witness herself and circum-vinced that the Supreme Court's action in this case, instead of being criticized, should be com mended as an act of substantial justice.

It is the due of the Judges, whose patient inquiry established the truth in the case, to say that their decision attracted all the more attention at the time because it seemed an exception to the common sense and practical grasp that have characterized the judgments of the court in ecent years.

Such a record is needed most urgently. It would be perfectly practical to have it begin with the birth of the child. A report of all births within a school district could be sent by the health authorities to the principal school and teachers could be assigned to go to the homes and report upon each child, especially regarding the mentality of the child's parents and general surroundings likely to influence the early development of ment in that city for municipal ice. It says: We would like to hear one good reason why Hartford should not cut out the ice from its reservoirs and sell it to the people of the city. If Hartford can sell water it should be able to sell the frozen form of the same sub-stance. And if it can conduct the water business at a profit there is no reason to sup-pose that the ice business would not be run as well. If Hartford cut ice on the reservoirs, and sold it, there is no reason to suppose that there would ever be a shortage even in the season of the lightest ice crops.

There is one suggestion about obtaining municipal ice which the Hartford authorities would do

ORATION ON FREE SPEECH.

RIENDS: I want to say something about free speech in St. Louis. I shall probably be arrested, but I will have said at least some of the things, I have in mind. It is hard for the police anywhere o do something that does not amuse me; and our own police, I think, are more amusing than most. Aside from keeping the I. W. W. people from doing the only kind of work they seem to care anything about, the police are denying us one of the rights for which we came to this country. We must talk, my friends. We must not talk just because we can talk; but we must as a community give public expression to what think, and it is unfair to assume that one of us thinks any harder the city reservoirs, hundreds of men would have to small investors.

St. Louis Football Elevens MORE THAN TWICE Look for Hard Battles Today

Washington Expects Defeat at Columbia, While One of the Best Contests of the Mound City Season Should Result When Soldan and Central High Boys Clash.

Frank Geschke, who formerly held the welter, middle and heavyweight amateur boxing championships, made his debut as a profession. I at the Tower Social Athletic Club last night. Geschke's inaugural bout as a "pro" was quite successful, inasmuch as he knocked out his opponent, Frank Groves, in the second round. Groves was a bit the heavier and seemed to be in fitter condition. However, Geschke slipped the kayo over on him in a mixup and it was several minutes before he was able to leave the ring. "Young Sid" won his bout from Harry Forshaw, when the referee stopped the bout at the end of the first round to prevent a knockout. Jimmy Joy and "Sunny Frank" fought four rounds to a draw in the preliminary bout.

On the form displayed this season bott elevens should succeed in scoring. Centra is favored on the defense, while Soldan evidently is a better scoring machine. Unlike in the past, Coach Walker is resorting to the open style of play, while the West Enders are depending more upon the line smashing play.

Both teams are in the best of condition, every man being physically fit. It should be a great context. Friday's Football Results. At Missoula, Mont.—North Dakota Agricultural 0, University of Montana 13.

were engaged in a rast and exciting raily that had started a half minute before and the crowd was on its feet cheering the contestants. The cheering stopped instantly when it was seen that the bout had been stopped by the police; but the crowd was at a loss to understand why the order had been given and closed in about the ring to learn the reason. In the confusion that followed no official announcement was made, and it is probable many who were present are still wondering what was wrong.

Fowler is shifty, clever, has a strong punch, and is constant!, in action. He didn't give Benny a moment's respite, and the St. Louis boy had to let out every link that was in him.

When Fowler found that McGovern's speed and cleverness was too much for him at long range, the little Memphis boxer covered with his gloves and marched right in regardless of his opponent's jabs and crosses and then, when at close quarters, he let his hands fly so fast and hard to face and body that McGovern had to clinch and hold for protection. This, of course, counted against the St. Louis boy and justified Referee Randall's conclusion that the bout was a draw. Duffing the Duffing the bout McGovern landed the greater number of blows, some of them light, but they scored as points, and had he done less holding he would have been the winner.

Fowler came here preceded by information that he was a rough, not to say foul, boxer, but he showed none of it last night and in fairness and observation of the rules he outdid McGovern. He is a willing, aggressive boxer and his efforts to please made a great hit with the crowd.

WASHINGTON. Nov. 14—Cotton consumed during October was 451,541 bales, exclusive of linters, compared with 511,923 in October last year, the Census Bureau announced today. Consumption for the three months ending Oct, 31, was 1,250,715 bales, against 1,386,708 last year. Cotton on hand Oct. 31, in manufacturing establishments, 713,407 bales, compared with 1,022,015 a year ago and in independent warehouses, 3,780,036, compared with 2,606,659 a year ago, Exports were 497,180 bales, against 1,517,538 last year ago, 12,152 bales, against 35,40 last year and for the three months, 54,554, against 20,803 a year-ago. Cotton spindles active numbered 30,651,546, against 30,855,360 a year ago, Linters consumed 29,101 bales, against 31,355 a year ago, and for the three months, 51,770 bales, against 35,682 last year on hand in manufacturing establishments, 65,292 bales, against 34,558 a year ago, and in Independent warshouses, 48,647, against 35,057 a year ago. Linters exported was 106 bales, and 507 the three months, 6767 bales. SMALL COTTON SUPPLIES

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—American cotton spinners used less cotton during the first three months of the cotton year than they did in the same period last year; exports during October were less than one-third of what they were a year ago, and almost a million bales more were in the hands of manufacturers and in warehouses at the end of October, than there were last year at that time.

This summarizes briefly the effect of the European war on the American cotton industry, as disclosed today by the October cotton consumption and distribution report of the Census Bureau.

The United Kingdom, during October increased its takings of American cotton, 232,065 bales, having been exported to it. Germany received no American cotton, while France took 23,002 bales, the first it had received since the beginning of the war. SMALL COTTON SUPPLIES Heavy draft, extra.... A German Wireless Station

SAN FRANCISCO, Nev. 14—Apparatus described as a device for locating mineral deposits thousands of feet underground established by supposedly German engineers at Alama, lower California, materialised recently, as a full-fledged radio wireless station equipped to operate over a radius of 2000 miles and was seized by Mexican authoritiles, according to a letter received here today from William R. Madden, at Ensenada, a coast town, 110 miles from the Mexican border.

The letter confirms advices from Washington that the plant was closed. Alamo is a mining town, 60 miles back in the mountains from Ensenada at an altitude of about $600 feet.

The station, according to Madden, in the station, according to Madden.

The station, according to Madden, was erected by three German engineers, supposed to have been landed from the German cruiser Nuernberg, who accounted for their apparatus by saying that it was a new invention for dis-

About the time the plant was put in operation; the British Vice Consul at Ensenada discovered its real nature and at his suggestion the plant was conand the engineers were failed.

The Jarr Family

BY ROY L MCCARDELL

Mrs. Jarr, in Exile, Acquires Stock of New Experiences.

B widow I hear you speak of a much?" asked Mrs. Jarr.
"Shassh!" said Mrs. Blodger. "Shassh!" Mrs. Jarr never liked to be "shasshed" by anybody. "If it's anything disagreeable, out with it!" had been a motto of Mrs. Jarr's mother. And from her Mrs. Jarr had inherited an antipathy to being

he Blodger-Cackleberry home and hence just needs submit to all the shasshing that occurred there.

"You see," explained Mr. Blodger "'Mella pussyfoots around. She may get an earful."

"She wears carpet slippers," whispere Irene Cackleberry. "Just the same, you got to hand it to her that she walks out every day to the Old Soldiers' Home for three months because the superintendent had promised she should marry the first one that was eligible," Mr. Blodger explained. "You know, the old soldiers get awful cranky know, the old soldiers get awful oranky as a general thing when young women come around wanting to be their widows for the pension from a grateful country; so the ladies on the eligible list keep out of sight till the veteran is too far gone to shoo her and the minister away. So if 'Melia has sore feet, don't forget she got them for the old flag and $34 a month!"

"Oh, 'Melia, as you call her, is the sol

"Oh, 'Melia, as you call her, is the soldier's widow you've been talking of?"
Mrs. Jarr inquired.
"Yea," Mrs. Blodger explained. "We rented the second floor to her. It costs her more to have a whole floor than just a room: but it looks good in her affidavit when she applies for an increase in her pension. The girls still use their room, however," Mrs. Blodger continued, "and 'Melia (her name was Amelia, Fodder before she married the gallant old der before she married the gallant old veteran/Sam Smunk), has decided to be-come an invalid."
"Decided to become an invalid?" re-

"Decided to become an invalid." re-eated Mrs. Jarr.
"Why, yes, being an invalid is so re-ned, and it also looks good in the ap-lication for an increase in pension,"
re. Blodger explained.
"So she took to wearing carpet alip-ers and pussyfooting around," said Mr.

Blodger.

"She walks in her sleep, too!" murmured Mrs. Blodger in hushed tones.

"Always toward the icebox," sniffed Miss Irene Cackleberry.

"I don't believe in putting food back into iceboxes, it only spoils," remarked Mr. Blodger.

Mr. Blodger.

"Well, we've got to be nice to her, now that she is a soldier's widow," said Mrs. Blodger.

"I wish you were one, Mawr," remarked Miss Gladys Cackleberry acidly.

"Here, you now!" cried Mr. Blodger in a grieved tone. "Yuh know I'm neutral. Duggun it! I never seen such bloodthirsty girls! If I was in a war they'd wish an atrocity on me or duty on a submarine, or something with a percentage against me like that!"

"Hush!" cautioned Mrs. Blodger.
"Here's Amelia now. Don't talk of wars and such things. Her grief is too

A large, pasty blend woman with the whape of a meal sack shuffled in upon them, sniffling.

"Oh, Mrs. Blodger," she whimpered.

'they've sent me my husband's effecks picture of him taken at the Gettysburg rom the Old Solders' Home and a picture of him taken at the Gettysburg Reunion, but there are four other gallant veterans in the group and I can't tell which is my husbin. I can't be expected to cry over five old soldiers for only $24 a month."

"Don't you care, dearle," said Mrs. Blodger sympathetically. "If you break down crying over a group, you'll be wholly dependent and incapacitated and maybe have to spend the rest of your days bedridden. Think how grand that would be!"

"But I can't remember what he looked like, and his brother, a retired Government printer, is coming over from Washington to see me," moaned Mrs. Smunk (nee Fodder). Suppose he asks me if he looked natural."

"You can't expect $24 a month without some drawbacks," said Mrs. Blodger. Then she introduced Mrs. Jarr.

He wished to get ideas on "the ideal wife," on whom, recently, he has been preaching a series of sermons.

To be a good cook is the strongest guy-rope a wife can have attached to her husband's heart, the answers show. She must not merely be able to cook, but must actually like to do it. None of the men said the ideal wife must be beautiful. None wrote in favor of the "clinging vine." They asked selfreliance. The mother-in-law must not be introduced into the household, some be introduced into the household, some said. Nagging is taboo. The wife must

That a husband dislikes above every-thing else to return home from work and be greeted by a wife wearing an old kimono was emphasized by all. Neat ness in household matters and personal appearance is one of the things that will help a wife to keep her husband's ove, this clergyman preached.
"If love grows cold after marriage there is something wrong," he added.

That a man might love more than one woman, or a woman more than one man was possible, he admitted; but neither should let such second love master him or her, or misery would ensue.

Other requisites for an ideal wife given by the letters were modesty, ecomy in the expenditure of the h band's money and the continued use of accomplishments, such as music. The wife must be patient, kind and charitable, and must appreciate above a else the privilege of being a mother. Summing up all these charming traits, this is what it takes to be a truly

Now, the next question is this: Such a wife is surely entitled to an "ideal husband." Might not the Detroit clergy-man next make an effort to find out what constitutes THIS rare specimen of the human race? Maybe in the end he will reach the conclusion, as has many "ideal wives," that there ain't no sucl

The Bear and Bull

NCE upon a time two men were crossing a large field. When they were right in the middle of the field a big brindle bull came along to show them the nearest way to the One of the men found a tree an climbed it as rapidly as possible. The other couldn't get to the tree in time, but, seeing a large, sociable-looking hole in the ground, he jumped into the hole The bull pretty nearly got him as he went down, but just missed him and jumped over the hole. The man came up again like a jack-in-the-box, the bull gave a snort and a jump at hir Down went the man and over went the bull, up came the man and back came the bull, till the man up in the tree got excited and called down:

"You blamed fool, you, why don't yo stay in that hole? You'll get that bull so mad he'll keep us up here all sun

"Blamed fool yourself," yelled the man elow. "There's a bear in that hole!"

OWN at a Southern racecoun no more than to say that it's a place where you lose your mone; in the winter time, I took a young lady out to the track and she insisted on placing a bet on a horse. She wouldn't even let me help her do it. The horse did worse than to come in last. He turned around and ran the other way. I said:

"Well, you lose your bet. The hor you had your money on is running the wrong way!"
She gurgled with satisfied glee.

"Show's that a woman's instinct can't go wrong!" she answered, triumphantly. I played him both ways! Her Delightful Inconsistency.
